Roosevelt Wants Him as Temporary Chairman if Progressives Control

MISSOURIAN WILLING TO ACT NO MORE CAMPAIGNING

Was One of Eight Governors Who Asked Colonel to Become Candidate

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 27.—In a letter received by Gov. Herbert Hadley here today, Col. Theodore Roosevelt asked him to be temporary chairman of the Republican National convention to be held in Chicago. If the Roosevelt forces succeed in getting control of the convention.

Delegates Told to Hurry.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Managers of Republican political headquarters here are taking no chances of delegates failing to have their credentials in Chicago within the time limit set by the Republican national committee.

Roosevelt Ahead in Texas.

PORT WORTH, Tex., May 27.—While indications tonight point to control of the state convention here by Roosevelt forces and the selection of eight delegates from the state-at-large favorable to him, there are possibilities of a hot struggle out of factional difficulties.

Only the delegates-at-large will be chosen by the state convention.

AMENDMENT PETITIONS ARE BEING CIRCULATED

RETIRED AGE FOR BISHOPS

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 27.—Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church no longer need face the guttural method of retirement by which the general conference votes upon their effectiveness, as the result of the adoption by the quadrennial body of the majority report which compels the retirement of the bishop at that general conference nearest his seventy-third birthday.

Proceeding the adoption of the report, the conference adjourned and introduced at the morning session by Robert Forbes of Philadelphia, which provides that any charges made against bishops should be presented to the senior bishop, who should present it to the board of bishops, where the complaint should be heard behind closed doors.

Dr. J. M. Buckley of New York, known in the Methodist Episcopal church as the "bishop maker" and for 32 years editor of one of the strongest church papers, today withdrew from active service.

Dr. G. F. Eckman of New York is mentioned as Dr. Buckley's successor.

The resignation of Missionary Bishop W. F. Oldham to take a place on the board of foreign missions was accepted.

The conference discussed the automatic retirement of bishops at the general conference nearest their 73rd birthday. The plan, which is a protest against the "guttural" method of retirement by the vote of the general conference, probably will be adopted.

COLORADO LANDS PAY

GREENSBORO, Colo., May 27.—Land which was sold four years ago by J. P. Roberts, for $16,000, today brought $75,000 from A. H. Peterson of Chicago, who bought it from J. M. Ginnrich of Denver. The property consists of 4,128 acres in northern Weld county.

Reservoir Breaks in Mesa County; Crops Devastated

GRAND JUNCTION, May 27.—Roan creek reservoir, 20 miles north of De Beque, broke this morning and the flood devastated all the crops in the valley of the stream for a distance of about 40 miles. It is estimated that over $80,000 in damages resulted. Loss of the water is placed at $30,000. The reservoir was one of the largest in Mesa county. It had been weakening for months, it is reported.

80 Persons Killed in Spanish Theater Fire

CASSELLON, Spain, May 27.—Eighty persons were killed tonight in a fire in a theater at Villareal which was caused by the explosion of a cinematograph.

ENDS LIFE IN COURT RULING
A MANITOU IS AGAINST SALOON DARROW

Denver Man, Supposed to Be J. Becker, Shoots Himself Through the Head

HAD ROOM IN THE SPRINGS N. E. DETECTIVE IN TROUBLE

Came Here Last Friday From Capital City, and Had Been Drinking Heavily

Prosecution May Introduce All the Evidence in Their Possession

R. J. Foster Cited for Contempt—Day in Court Marked by Frequent Clashes

A man, supposed to be J. Becker of Denver, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head with a .22 caliber revolver, in the "Tavern Buffet," 220 Manitou avenue, Manitou, yesterday afternoon at 1:45 o'clock.

Richard Weber, a painter and decorator of this city, declares he met the man in Colorado City, Saturday night, and that the latter said his name was Becker, that he was married, and had a wife and child in Denver. They conversed in German, Weber says.

Becker entered the Manitou saloon, carrying a small sack of eggs which he had just bought at Wilson's store, and went into a room in the back of the building. He ordered a bottle of beer, and when the bartender, R. H. Robinson, entered, he was eating one of the raw eggs. Robinson brought him a glass in which to put the eggs, and left him alone. A few minutes afterward he heard the muffled report of a shot, and rushed to the room, where he found Becker with his head bowed upon the table and with a bullet hole in his right temple. The pistol had dropped from his extended hand.

Robinson called City Marshal W. H. Woodman, who was across the street, and Doctor H. M. O'Leary was summoned. He pronounced the man dead.

When Clarence Jackson arrived, a search was made of the man's clothes, but no marks of identification were discovered save the laundry mark, which was "J. R." In a pocket was found a Denver campaign card, on which was penciled the address "127 South Tejon street." He was found to wear an artificial limb, his right leg being cut off above the ankle. A $5 bill and three nickels were in a wallet. He carried a Waltham seven-jewel watch with a gold filled case.

Was Small Man.

The suicide was five feet tall, was smooth shaven, had brown eyes, black curly hair, and small, delicate white hands. His features were regular. He had a habit of calling a "canniflow" can, evidently the result of some fight. He wore a blue suit with small white stripes. The suit bore the trademark of Danforth and Fisher of Denver. His black soft hat bore the maker's name "Boothby, Force and Goodbar Hat Co." He carried a pair of size 5 tan gloves. The pistol was a small, "cock pistol" hammerless revolver.

At the rooming house at 127 South Tejon street it was learned that the suicide came there last Friday and paid for a room for a week. He had no baggage. In his room were found some soiled linen with the same mark "J. R.", a large vermuth bottle, nearly empty, a bottle of whiskey and one of hair tonic.

He said that he had been drinking heavily in Colorado City, Saturday. The liquor found in his room were bought in a saloon there. Sunday he went on a sightseeing drive about Manitou in a carriage from the Pioneer Livery. The driver said that he was very reticent on the trip and that a man who took the trip at the same time was more talkative. As each paid his own fare, it is thought the two were strangers. The other man said his home was in Cripple Creek.

The Denver police have been notified. Coroner Jackson has not decided whether to hold an inquest, and meanwhile the body is at the morgue.

NAVAL BILL IS AMENDED

Action Taken in House After Score of Orators Extolled Labor and Workingmen

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Labor was extolled and the workingmen crowned by more than a score of fervid orators in the house debate on the naval ship appropriation bill today. The sum total of the oratory was the adoption of an amendment to the bill providing that hereafter all coal purchased for the navy must be mined under the eight-hour work day law. A proposed amendment requiring the miners to be paid not less than the union scale of wages was voted down.

Representative Focht of Pennsylvania (Republican) resented an allusion to labor conditions in Pennsylvania, made by Representative Heflin of Alabama (Democrat). He assailed the conditions in turpentine camps of Alabama, where, he said, "were scenes more barbarous and inhuman than could be witnessed in the mines of Siberia."

Representative Heflin and Representative Bartlett and Howard of Georgia, replied in heated speeches. Ad. My God, to Thee," will be held.

MUSICIANS MEET IN OMAHA

OMAHA, May 27.—Two hundred delegates, representing 80,000 members of the American Federation of Musicians in 400 cities of the United States and Canada, opened the annual convention of the organization here today.

A memorial meeting in honor of the members of the ship's band who went down with the Titanic playing "Nearer, My God, to Thee," will be held.

RESTORE GRAY HAIR TO NATURAL COLOR

The old idea of using Sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers had dark glossy hair at seventy-five while our mothers are gray before they are fifty. Our grandmothers kept their hair soft and glossy with a "Sage Tea," which also restored the natural color. The objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it. This objection has been overcome by the West Chemical Company of New York, who has placed on the market a superior preparation of Sage, combined with Sulphur and other valuable remedies for restoring it to its natural color and shine, without staining hair. The beauty of the hair depends more on its health than on its color. A healthy hair will bring back the color in a few days and don't be troubled with dandruff, itching scalp and loose, falling hair. With a Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will quickly correct these troubles, and give color, strength and luster to your hair. Get a fifty-cent bottle from your druggist today, and prove this to your own satisfaction. All druggists sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if the remedy is not exactly as represented. Agents, the Robinson Drug Co.

Rebels Leading
Federals Into a
Trap, Is Belief

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, May 27.—Whenever General Huerta, the federal commander is ready to enter Jimenez that town, hitherto the headquarters of General Orozco, the rebel chief, is his for the taking. The little garrison of rebels at Jimenez evacuated the town today burning the bridge at the Rio Florida where the water is high. The federal military trains have therefore been blocked several days. The rebels also destroyed a number of other bridges. The advance guard of the insurgents is today gathered at Santa Rosalia, 30 miles south of here. The big bridge at that point will remain intact for several days. General Orozco spent only a few hours here today returning to Bachajon to complete preparations for a mobilization of troops for the next big battle. A small force of federals fired on a southbound passenger train on the Mexican Northwestern railroad today near San Andres but no one was injured.

Trying to Isolate Federals. To General Arzue and Campa, have been entrusted the work of isolating the federal army. A large force is operating in the territory around Torreon and an unconfirmed report reached here today that they are now in possession of Gomez Palacio and Lerdo. It is expected that the rebels will harass Huerta almost constantly by cutting the railroad behind him. The condition of General Orozco, the right-hand man of General Orozco who was stabbed recently by unknown assassins was today said to be rapidly growing serious. Blood poisoning has set in. Huerta is anxious to get to the United States for medical treatment, but is reported to be in fear that he will be arrested if he comes into American territory. Fugitive is accused of circulating a violent anti-American proclamation in El Paso in the early days of the revolution. He is the President of the American Union in El Paso.

COPIES OF THE PROCLAMATIONS WERE distributed by army officers in El Paso. HAZEL MAY 27.—Messages were received here today from rebel headquarters at Chihuahua announcing the capture of Torreon by rebels under General Arzue. Details were lacking. MEXICO CITY, May 27.—A telegram from a special correspondent of El Imparcial filed at 11:40 a. m. today in Torreon states that the city was quiet. The federalists held it was quiet. Contrary to Altes 10 miles to the southwest in Durango where General Blumquist now has 1,600 men with artillery.

Believes Huerta Is in Trap. WASHINGTON, May 27.—Military students of the revolution in Mexico believe that General Huerta, in command of the federal army in the north, has placed his force in a serious position in the eyes of the rebels. A defeated army of Orozco after the battle of Belian. His long line of communication running from the city of Mexico northward to Torreon is exposed to the danger of complete disruption at the hands of the rebels. The rebels, which has suddenly developed its presence just west of Torreon and many miles to the south of General Huerta's advance guard. The state department learned today that apparently aroused to the danger of this situation, the federal command has dispatched a considerable force to prevent a rebel army which is under the lead of General Campa a daring cavalry officer. The two armies have been in collision at Loma a few miles west of Torreon on the railroad to Durango, but the result of the encounter is not yet known.

STATE THREATENS TO TAKE CONTROL

Attorney General at San Diego
Tells Police They Must
Meet Emergencies

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 27.—A small riot and a statement by Attorney General U. S. Webb that if the police of San Diego were unable to cope with conditions here the state would assume control of the city, increased the seriousness of the U. S. W. situation today. The riot was caused by the attempt of M. J. Conner, an industrial worker of the world out, not in good standing because his dues were in arrears, to test the "move on" ordinance of San Diego by speaking at Seventh and B streets at 1 p. m. today. A crowd gathered about Carson when he began to speak. An officer approached him and the man threw up his hands, asking if he were under arrest. It is alleged that the officer then struck Carson. Carson ran, was followed and caught. He was arrested on a charge of resisting an officer and could not furnish bail.

LOS ANGELES, May 27.—Deportation of two alleged members of the Industrial Workers of the World, their departure for San Diego of about 200 men, all said to be industrial workers, and the arrival here of Joseph Meyers of the San Diego police force, bringing several bombs said to have been prepared as part of a plan to destroy the lives of officials of San Diego, were the principal features in the Industrial Workers of the World situation in Los Angeles today.

Secretary of War
Denounces Proposed
Army Legislation

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The army appropriation bill was reported back to the senate and house today by the conferees with amendments which would legislate Major General Wood who owes his position to the personal friendship of President Roosevelt, out of office as chief of staff and would leave the location of military posts to a commission of retired army officers and two members each of the senate and house committee on military affairs. The amendment which would remove General Wood also would prevent either Brigadier General Crozier or Fuston from ever attaining the office of chief of staff. No officer who has not spent two years in the line with troops before becoming a brigadier would be eligible. Many army officers charge that the fight between the line and the staff, which recently resulted in the resignation from the army of Major General Ainsworth, is responsible for the proposition.

Lieutenant Generals Young and MacArthur, Major Generals Randall, Lee and Humphreys would be the retired army officers on the proposed commission which would report to congress by January 1 upon the location and distribution of army posts and the proposed abandonment of many recommended by the war department. The report was not acted on in either house today. A sharp conflict over the amendments is expected. Senators Curtis and Smoot blocked immediate action in the senate by insisting on time to study the changes. Secretary of War Stimson in a statement on the proposed bill, said the provision would have rendered ineligible for service as chief of staff every one except four of the 10 generals who have served as commanders-in-chief of the American army since General Washington.

Few Would Have Escaped Effects. It would, he said, have disqualified Gen. Winfield Scott of the old army. It would also have disqualified Sheridan, McClellan, McPherson, Meade, Warren, Halleck, Schofield, O. F. Howard, James H. Wilson and Horatio Porter among others of the Union army. It would have disqualified Gen. Jackson, Beauregard, Forrest, Wheeler of the Confederacy. General Grant would have barely escaped its restriction by one year's service and General Sherman by two months. "Coming down to modern times, it permanently disqualifies practically the entire engineer corps, the high honor men of West Point. It disqualifies, for example, Colonel Goethals and all of his assistants on the Panama canal. General Crozier, the chief of ordnance, General Funston and many other officers.

In fact this rider tends to put a premium upon mere routine service and to exclude from the highest post in the army the men whose brains, initiative and opportunities have brought them to the front. It would result in confining the choice for this principal staff position to men who have had the least staff experience. It is currently said that this provision is aimed at Gen. Leonard A. Wood the present chief of staff. If so, this is a pretty high price to pay for personal legislation. What I am concerned with primarily is the effect of such legislation on the service. Personal legislation—the attempt by legislation to affect the status of individual officers for good or ill—has been the bane of the American administration. In the present proposition, the evil is exhibited in its most exaggerated form. "I doubt if the American people have any great sympathy for an attack upon a capable officer who served his country well in Cuba and in the Philippines and who is serving with energy and efficiency as chief of staff."

A RECORD JUDGMENT AGAINST INDIVIDUAL

Supreme Court Holds A. S.
Bigelow Must Pay Company $2,500,000

WASHINGTON, May 27.—One of the largest judgments against an individual ever decreed by the supreme court of the United States was announced today against Albert S. Bigelow of Boston. He will be called upon to pay a judgment of $2,500,000, together with interest, which probably will bring the total to $2,550,000. The case is the result of the litigation between Copper Mining and Smelting company, Bigelow and Leonard Lewisohn of New York promoted the company, and while owning its stock sold it to property at an enormous profit. Then they sold their stock to "the innocent public." With the company under the control of the "innocent stockholders," it sued Lewisohn, in New York for the profits. The company lost. Then Bigelow was sued by the company in Massachusetts, and the courts of that state laid down the far-reaching principle that the company, no longer controlled by its promoters, could rescind its contract to purchase the property from them, and made Bigelow account. Consequently, Bigelow was directed to pay the company $2,500,000. Corporation lawyers are in a quandary tonight as to the law. The supreme court in 1905 affirmed the New York decision, which held the company could not recover, while today it likewise affirmed the Massachusetts decision, which allowed it to recover.

Lockwood Smiles As He Testifies. Lockwood smiled when relating incidents which occurred while he was acting under the instructions of the district attorney in the deceiving of Franklin, who, he said, had negotiated with him for his vote as a McNamara juror. An objection was raised by the defense to nearly every question put to Lockwood by the district attorney and but few were sustained.

COURT RULING IS AGAINST

(Continued From Page One) was declared by attorneys for the prosecution as a sweeping victory for them as it will enable them to introduce all the evidence in their possession tending to prove that Darrow had been guilty of attempting to bribe other jurors.

Continuing at the point at which his story was interrupted Saturday, the old soldier said that at his first visit to Franklin's office, the latter had told him to be careful how his wife spent the money if the deal went through. "I told him," said Lockwood, "that my wife would be the last person I would want to know about it."

Franklin, he said, visited his home again, and this time Lockwood said he told him that he would have nothing to do with the transaction. Franklin professed regret and told him if he changed his mind the proposition was "still open."

The witness testified that he went to the district attorney's office next and told him what had happened. On this day, Franklin made another visit to Lockwood's farm. Franklin told him that his name had been drawn as a juror in the McNamara trial and said to him, the witness testified.

Says Franklin Named Darrow. "George there is $4,000 in it for you and I want you to have it." Feigning to accept the proposition, though with reluctance, Lockwood said that he expressed fear that the money would not be paid to him and Franklin, he said, declared, "Well, I'll talk the matter over with Clarence Darrow and he'll fix it."

Franklin then agreed to come the next day and talk it over. Lockwood said that at that time he had no intention of allowing himself to be bribed. "State whether you were acting with the knowledge and advice of the district attorney," directed Captain Fredericks.

"I was," said the witness. Lockwood then told of another conference with the district attorney and of a visit to his house by Captain Fredericks. Detectives S. L. Browne of the district attorney's office and several others connected with the prosecutor's staff.

Three of the men concealed themselves in the barn on top of a tank tower and one of them on top of a house said the witness. When Franklin came, Lockwood asked him where Darrow was. He replied the witness said, "Did you think that Darrow would come out here?"

"I told him," said Lockwood, "that I thought he referred to Darrow when he mentioned the 'big one.' He said that he had meant Captain White, whom he had selected as custodian for the money." The witness said he made further objection to White as "stakeholder" but Franklin insisted and finally it was agreed that Lockwood should meet White the next morning at the corner of Third and Los Angeles streets, where the first payment of $500 would be made. Lockwood then told of the meeting with White the next day at the designated place, when he was given a $500 bill by White and shown $3,500 more. He said he saw Franklin across the street at the time and when Franklin approached he said, he told the McNamara detective that he feared there was something wrong. He believed, he said, that some one had overheard his conversation at his home the previous night. Franklin looked back and uttered an oath, then cautioned him not to look around. "Let's get out of here," Franklin

Special to The Gazette. CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., May 27.—Blinded by the sun as she rounded the shoulder of a mountain, Mrs. Roy Wright drove her automobile over a 10-foot embankment in Aragua, which landed this afternoon and was pinned under the car when it turned over. Two ribs and her left wrist were fractured and she was severely bruised. Her injuries are serious. Mrs. Wright's mother, who was in the car with her, escaped with slight bruises. Mrs. Wright is the wife of the manager of the Faulkner garage in this city. She was brought to a local hospital in an automobile.

NEW YORK, May 27.—Thirty brides-to-be from Scotland and Ireland reached New York today on the steamer Caledonia from Glasgow. Most of the young women were bound for points west of the Mississippi and in southwestern Canada.

FOR THE WOMAN WHO THINKS AND FEELS.

Some women complain that they periodically suffer from dull and heavy feelings, or dizziness in the head, nervousness, pain and bearing-down feelings which should not occur to the normal healthy woman. But most every woman is subject to these pains at some time in her life, due to abnormal conditions in life, such as constipation, over-taxed strength, bad air, poor or improper food, wet feet, sluggish liver, etc. A regulator and female tonic made from native medicinal roots with pure glycerin, and without the use of alcohol, called has proven its value in thousands of cases, like the following:

Mrs. LENA M. MARTIN, of Auburn, Neb.—Route 1, Box 84, says: "I have used your medicine for thirty years for female trouble and general weakness with the very best result, and they have saved me hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills. I buy the Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery and take them together. I never was disappointed in your remedies and take pleasure in recommending them to any suffering lady. I am now almost fifty years old; at fifty-five I took your medicines, both kinds, and I feel like a young girl. If any lady came to write me, I would gladly tell her more about the good work of your medicine."

ROBINSON SUGGESTS MANY IMPROVEMENTS

Civic Beauty Expert Outlines Plans in Lengthy Report Received Yesterday

Some exceedingly pertinent and practical suggestions are contained in the report of Charles Mulford Robinson, of Rochester, N. Y., the civic beauty expert, who was in Colorado Springs several months ago to investigate conditions here and advise changes looking to the improvement and beautification of the city. His report has been received yesterday.

The report is very exhaustive, comprising nearly 100 typewritten pages.

The smoke nuisance, the union station project, street parks, car lines, parking, pavement, parks and playgrounds, the "Around-the-City Drive," the Cheyenne avenue question, and restrictions on the height and position of buildings are some of the subjects with which the report deals.

In the letter preliminary to the report proper, Mr. Robinson says: "The plan must, if it is to be practical, adopt the city's existing street arrangement as its basis. Fixed conditions, individual and corporate rights and property values require that modifications of the street may be clearly undertaken. Thus it is that a plan, if it is comprehensive, becomes one for improvements rather than an abstract discussion of ideal conditions."

"In the following report, therefore, I have endeavored to be practical, concerning myself with the problem of what improvements are desirable and possible in the established city of Colorado Springs. The result cannot be an ideal city, which must now be unattainable."

The success of this plan does not depend on you or on me. It depends on the citizens themselves. They can have what they want, if they want it enough to pay for it.

At the close of his letter he points out that he does not recommend that all the ideas be carried out at once, this being one of the questions.

The Railroad Question.

The first subject Mr. Robinson takes up is that of steam railroads. He says that the plan for a union depot will not be realized, if at all, for many years to come. The Santa Fe is the worst railroad feature as it cuts right through the residence district. He urges strong ordinances against smoke from the trains, limiting the speed of trains, and forbidding noisy speeds from whistles, and suggesting that freight trains be forbidden to stop at passenger depots and be compelled to stop several blocks south of their orders.

Electric power for the running of trains through the city is pointed out as a possibility in the future, as soon as the Hydro franchise expires. This is an experiment, the system being in use in several big terminals.

Concerning a Union Depot.

If a union station is decided on, Cheyenne or Nevada streets, or the Rio Grande tracks, would make desirable sites. The smoke would do little damage there, car facilities would be better and the heart of the city would be freed from the depot nuisance.

If a point track is desirable, the Rio Grande tracks are the most advantageous, but the transfer of the Santa Fe to the Rio Grande should be considered only as a step towards the elimination of railroad entrance directly through the city. Mr. Robinson says he has been told by engineers that the Rio Grande road can be diverted just south of Palmer Lake, so that the road can come into the city from the east and that the other route can take the same route, thus riding the city of what Mr. Robinson calls "the thrumming" of the railroads.

If a union depot is to be established at the present Rio Grande site or if conditions remain as at present, Mr. Robinson suggests better roadway facilities. He suggests that two drive-ways, one from the north and one from the south, run through the Antlers park. He says that now the Rio Grande depot looks as though it were in a back yard, shut off from the city. He also suggests that the Santa Fe should improve its present site with drive-ways, parking, etc.

In winding up this part of the report, he criticizes the overcrossings, calling them hideous, and recommending that hereafter an eye be given to the artistic as well as to the practical part of these structures.

His Street Plan.

Under the heading, "Street Plan," he makes the following suggestions: "While the street plan is of the 'monotonous checkerboard type,' it is too late to change it now as far as the main streets are concerned."

The streets in the additions to the city, while uniform among themselves, give a patchwork quilt effect to the city as a whole. They don't match in size and outline with the rest of the streets. Few of the main streets running east and west of the tracks. North of Pike's Peak avenue, out of ten streets only two go clear through.

Between the Rio Grande and Santa Fe tracks, the width of the streets is excessive for residence purposes. Every third street should be 100 feet wide, and the other two 60 feet wide in the new additions on the east side. This will be a matter of economy to the property holder and will afford the city a chance to establish playgrounds and neighborhood parks.

The Cheyenne street undercrossing should not be used too hard now, as it might interfere with the removal of the Santa Fe tracks later.

Park Shocks Run.

If the railroad property can be secured in a few years, Shooks run valley should be parked from Huerfano street south. It is worth waiting for and will be far more desirable than the proposed undercrossing.

Prospect street, the main artery north and south east of the Santa Fe tracks, is now 60 feet wide; it should be 80 feet wide and can be made so cheaply now.

Several of the west side streets should be opened through and some should be widened.

The car line should go directly north on Nevada from Cache la Poudre street, running through the parking, and the Corona line should go directly north from Williamette.

Jogs in streets often add to the attractiveness. Unbroken lines are tiresome.

plan for this seems possible now that the court house, city hall and post-office have already been built. However, he says a new building for the public safety department must be built before long and will probably be on the two lots north of the city hall. He suggests that that block on Nevada avenue be reduced to a roadway of 34 feet on the west side and that the east side of the street be parked. He further suggests that this plan be carried out in the block below. It would give a beautiful parking effect and a sort of civic center idea.

RESTORE GRAY HAIR TO NATURAL COLOR

The old idea of using Sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers had dark glossy hair at seventy-five, while our mothers are gray before they are fifty. Our grandmothers kept their hair soft and glossy with a "Sage Tea," which also restored the natural color.
One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it. This objection has been overcome by the Weyth Chemical Company of New York. They have found the means of superior preparation of Sage, combined with Sulphur and other valuable remedies for dandruff, itching scalp, and thin, weak, falling hair.
The beauty of the hair depends more on the scalp than on the hair itself. If the scalp is healthy, the hair will grow thick and strong. Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy will quickly correct these troubles, and give color, strength and beauty to your hair.

Rebels Leading
Federals Into a
Trap, Is Belief

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, May 27.—When General Huerta, the federal commander is ready to enter Jimenez, that town, hitherto the headquarters of General Orozco, the rebel chief, is his for the taking. The little garrison of rebels at Jimenez evacuated the town today, burning the bridge at the Rio Florida where the water is high. The federal military trains have therefore been blocked several days. The rebels also destroyed a number of other bridges.
The advance guard of the insurgents is today gathered at Santa Rosalia, 80 miles south of here. The big bridge at that point will remain intact for several days.
General Orozco spent only a few hours here today, returning to Bachimba to complete preparations for a mobilization of troops for the next big battle.
A small force of federals fired on a southbound passenger train on the Mexican Northwestern railroad today near San Andres but no one was injured.
Trying to Isolate Federals.
To General Argueta, the federal commander, has been entrusted the work of isolating the federal army. A large force is operating in the territory around Torreon and an unconfirmed report reached here today that they are now in possession of Gomez Palacio and Lerdo.
It is expected that the rebels will harass Huerta almost constantly by cutting the railroad behind him.
The condition of General Orozco, right-hand man of General Huerta, who was stabbed recently by unknown assassins, was said to be rapidly growing serious. Blood poisoning has set in.
Huerta is anxious to get to the United States for medical treatment, but is reported to be in fear that he will be arrested if he comes into American territory.
Huerta is accused of circulating a violent anti-American proclamation in El Paso in the early days of the revolution denouncing President Taft and the American people.
A copy of the proclamation was confiscated by army officers in El Paso.
HARRY MAY 27.—Messages were received here today from rebel headquarters at Chihuahua announcing the capture of Torreon by rebels under General Argueta. Details were lacking.

Believes Huerta Is in Trap.

WASHINGTON, May 27.—Military students of the revolution in Mexico believe that General Huerta, in command of the federal army in the north, has placed his force in a perilous position in the eagerness of his pursuit of the defeated army of Orozco after the battle of Culcan.
His long line of communication running from the city of Mexico northward to Chihuahua is exposed to the danger of complete disruption at the hands of a force of about 2,000 rebels, which has suddenly developed its presence just west of Torreon and many miles to the south of General Huerta's advance guard.
The state department learned today that apparently aroused to the danger of this situation, the federal command has dispatched a considerable force to prevent a raid by the rebel army which is under the lead of General Argueta, a daring cavalry officer.
The two armies have been in collision at Loma a few miles west of Torreon on the railroad to Durango, but the result of the encounter is not yet known.

SOCIETY GIRL ELOPES

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 27.—Miss Mary Fowner, one of Pittsburgh's social favorites and a golf player of national reputation, eloped to Youngstown, O., yesterday with Master J. Cammell of Sparrow Point, Md. They were licensed to get married; then Miss Fowner changed her mind. At all events she admits she and Cammell thought better of it and hurried back to Pittsburgh. They got there shortly before midnight, and Miss Fowner had the taxi driver show some speed in getting out to the Fowner mansion in North Highland avenue.

Attorney General at San Diego
Tells Police They Must
Meet Emergencies

SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 27.—A small riot and a warning by Attorney General I. S. Webb that if the police of San Diego were unable to cope with conditions here the state would assume control of the city, increased the seriousness of the situation today.
The riot was caused by the attempt of a small group of men to enter the World but not in good standing because his dues were in arrears, to test the "move on" ordinance of San Diego by speaking at Seventh and B streets at 1 p. m. today.
A crowd gathered about Carson when he began to speak. An officer approached him and the man threw up his hands, asking if he were under arrest. It is alleged that the officer then struck Carson. Carson ran, was followed and caught. He was arrested on a charge of resisting an officer and could not furnish bail.
LOS ANGELES, May 27.—Deportation of two alleged members of the Industrial Workers of the World, the departure for San Diego of about 200 men, all said to be Industrial Workers, and the arrival here of Joseph Meyers of the San Diego police force, bringing several bombs said to have been prepared as part of a plan to destroy the lives of officials of San Diego, were the principal features in the industrial workers of the world situation in Los Angeles today.

Secretary of War
Denounces Proposed
Army Legislation

WASHINGTON, May 27.—The army appropriation bill was reported back to the senate and house today by the conferees with anti-administration amendments which would legislate Major General Wood who owes his position to the personal friendship of former President Roosevelt, out of office as chief of staff and would leave the location of military posts to a commission of retired army officers and two members each of the senate and house committees on military affairs.
The amendment which would remove General Wood also would prevent either Brigadier General Crozier or Funston from ever attaining the office of chief of staff. No officer who has not spent years in the line with troops before becoming a brigadier would be eligible.
Many army officers charge that the fight between the line and the staff, which recently resulted in the resignation from the army of Major General Almsworth is responsible for the provision.
Lieutenant Generals Young and MacArthur, Major Generals Randall, Lee and Humphrey would be the retired army officers on the proposed commission which would report to Congress by January 1 upon the location and distribution of army posts and the proposed abandonment of many recommendations of the war department.
The report was not acted on in either house today.
A sharp conflict over the amendments is expected. Senators Curtis and Smoot blocked immediate action in the senate by insisting on time to study the changes.
Secretary of War Stimson in a statement on the proposed action by congress, said the provision supposedly aimed at General Wood would have rendered ineligible for so long as chief of staff any officer except four of the generals who have served as commander-in-chief of the American army since General Washington.
Few Would Have Escaped Effects.
"It would," he said, "have disqualified Gen. Winfield Scott of the old army. It would also have disqualified Sheridan, McClellan, McPherson, Meade, Warren, Halleck, Schofield, O. E. Howard, James H. Wilson and Horace Porter, among others of the Civil War, in the Civil War and Robert E. Lee, Jackson, Beauregard, Forrest, Wheeler of the Confederacy. General Grant would have barely escaped its restriction by one year's service and General Sherman by two months.
"Coming down to modern times, it permanently disqualifies practically the entire engineer corps, the high honor men of West Point. It disqualifies for example, Colonel Goethals and all of his assistants on the Panama canal. General Crozier, the chief of ordnance, General Funston and many other officers.
"It is currently said that this provision is aimed at Gen. Leonard A. Wood, the present chief of staff. If so, this is a pretty high price to pay for a man who has served the country well and who is serving with energy and efficiency as chief of staff."

WASHINGTON, May 27.—George M. Supreme Court Holds A. S. Bigelow Must Pay Company $2,500,000

WASHINGTON, May 27.—One of the largest judgments ever rendered by the supreme court of the United States was announced today against Albert S. Bigelow of New York. The judgment, which probably will bring the total to $2,500,000, is a judgment of $2,000,000, together with interest, which probably will bring the total to $2,500,000.
The judgment is in the case of the American Copper Mining and Smelting company, Bigelow and Leonard Lewin of New York pronounced the company, and while owning its stock sold to a property of an enormous profit. They then sold their stock to "the innocent public." With the company under the control of the "innocent stockholders," it sued Lewin in New York for the profits. The company lost.
Then Bigelow was sued by the company in Massachusetts, and the courts of that state laid down the far-reaching principle that the company, no longer controlled by its promoters, could rescind its contract to purchase the property from them, and Bigelow was directed to pay the company $2,000,000.
Corporation lawyers are in a quandary tonight as to the law. The supreme court in 1908 affirmed the New York decision, which held the company could not recover, while today it likewise affirmed the Massachusetts decision, which allowed it to recover.

was declared by attorneys for the prosecution as a sweeping victory for them as it will enable them to introduce all the evidence in their possession tending to prove that Darrow had been guilty of attempting to bribe other jurors.
Lockwood Smiles As He Testifies.
Lockwood smiled when relating incidents which occurred while he was acting under the instructions of the district attorney in the deceiving of Franklin, who, he said, had negotiated with him for his vote as a McNamara juror.
An objection was raised by the defense to nearly every question put to Lockwood by the district attorney and but few were sustained.
Continuing at the point at which his story was interrupted Saturday, the old soldier said that at his first visit to Franklin's office, the latter had told him to be careful how his wife spent the money if the deal went through.
"I told him," said Lockwood, "that my wife would be the last person I would want to know about it."
Franklin, he said, visited his home again, and this time Lockwood said he told him that he would have nothing to do with the transaction. Franklin professed regret and told him if he changed his mind the proposition was "still open."
The witness testified that he went to the district attorney's office next and told him what had happened.
On this day Franklin made another visit to Lockwood's farm. Franklin told him that his name had been drawn as a juror in the McNamara trial and said to him, the witness testified:

Says Franklin Named Darrow.

"George, there is $4,000 in it for you and I want you to have it."
Feigning to accept the proposition, though with reluctance, Lockwood said that he expressed fear that the money would not be paid to him and Franklin, he said, declared, "Well, I'll talk the matter over with Clarence Darrow and he'll fix it."
Franklin then agreed to come the next day and talk it over. Lockwood said that at that time he had no intention of allowing himself to be bribed.
"State whether you were acting with the knowledge and advice of the district attorney," directed Captain Fredericks.
"I was," said the witness.
Lockwood then told of another conference with the district attorney and of a visit to his house by Captain Fredericks. Detectives S. L. Browne of the district attorney's office and several others connected with the prosecutor's staff.
All of them concealed themselves about the premises after Lockwood had called upon Franklin and told him to come out. Franklin, he said, had asked if he should bring out the "big one" and he told him to do so.
Defense's Objection Overruled.
Chief Counsel Rogers for the defense objected to the testimony of Lockwood as "fourth degree hearsay" and on the further ground that Lockwood was shown to be not a competent juror but an agent of the district attorney. The objections were overruled.
Three of the men concealed themselves in the barn on top of a tank tower and one of them on top of a house, said the witness. When Franklin came Lockwood asked him where Darrow was. He replied, the witness said, "Did you think that Darrow would come?"
"I told him," said Lockwood, "that I thought he referred to Darrow when he mentioned the 'big one.' He said that he had meant Captain White, whom he had selected as custodian for the money."
The witness said he made further objection to White as "state witnesses" but Franklin insisted and finally it was agreed that Lockwood should meet White the next morning at the corner of Third and Los Angeles streets, where the first payment of $500 would be made.
Lockwood then told of the meeting with White the next day at the designated place, when he was given a $500 bill by White and shown $5,000 more. He said he saw Franklin across the street at the time and when Franklin approached he said, he told the McNamara detective that he feared there was something wrong. He believed, he said, that some one had overheard his conversation at his home the previous night. Franklin looked back and uttered an oath, then cautioned him not to look around.
"Let's get out of here, Andy,"

PROGRESS AT THE ISTHMUS

WORK on the Panama Canal proceeds so smoothly that little is heard of it. If there were scandals and delays all of us would hear more about affairs on the Isthmus than gets into print now, but since the Army engineers assumed charge there has been scarcely a hitch. Several years ago January 1, 1915 was announced as the earliest date at which the Canal could be finished, but Colonel Goethals is confident that ships will cross from the Atlantic to the Pacific through the big waterway at least one year earlier than that date. Another eighteen months will witness the actual completion of the greatest construction enterprise ever performed by man.

A few weeks ago the big sluice gates which control the flow of water in the spillway of the Gatun dam were closed. At that time there was about seventeen feet of water in the Gatun Lake, which is formed by the dam and which eventually will cover an area equal to that of the state of Rhode Island. It is expected that by the first of August the water will have reached the 50-foot level and begun to flow over the spillway.

The Canal Record, the official publication of the Commission, prints a statement showing that in the year ended May 1 a total of 16,448,513 cubic yards of earth was removed, and the amount remaining to be excavated is estimated at 26,836,495 yards. Since the beginning of the enterprise more earth has been removed each year than in the one preceding, so the engineers have only to continue construction at the present rate in order to have the Canal ready by the beginning of 1914.

To conduct this tremendous work the Government has gradually built up a perfect organization. What is to become of it after the Canal is finished? Other important construction enterprises are yet to be undertaken, the greatest of which is the control of the Mississippi River. In less than three years Colonel Goethals and his staff will be out of a job, and presumably they will go back to the army posts and spend their time in comparative idleness. And the Mississippi will continue to go on a rampage each year and destroy several million dollars' worth of property just as it has always done.

To permit the splendid organization of the Isthmus to go to pieces when it is so urgently needed to solve the greatest of all engineering problems here at home would be a sinful sacrifice of efficiency. The country is awakening to a realization of the importance of its river problem not only as a means of averting loss from floods but to improve its transportation facilities. A few days ago Senator Newlands of Nevada, who is actively interested in all matters relating to waterways, declared:

"The recent floods demonstrate the importance of dealing with our waterways under the comprehensive plans, like we did with the Panama and irrigation questions. The spillover system is as bad regarding projects as it is regarding political officers. It is demoralizing and unbusinesslike. The old 'put hole' system of appropriations for rivers has been very greatly improved, but we have never yet permitted our Army engineers to prosecute to us a big plan for a system of related waterways, with terminals and transfer facilities, including cooperative arrangements with the railroads. Our waterways have been as defective as a railroad, and without terminals, stations, or side tracks, and with a gap in the track every few hundred miles and without bridges over streams.

The Mississippi river problem is one simply of "run-off," the rains falling from the heavens and if distributed fairly over the year would result in a standard flow of the river and its tributaries which would be safe for navigation and attended with no destructive results. But the melting of snows in the Rocky, Allegheny and Appalachian mountain systems, together with spring rains, all bring about the same time, create an enormous "run-off" from an area comprising nearly two-thirds of the United States, and this "run-off" is emptied into the Gulf through a very narrow space.

We must not only increase our appropriations for bank reclamation and levy protection below, but we must arrest the run-off by storage for irrigation and water power. And we must do this in cooperation with the states and communities affected, under common plans, so that all the governmental interests can do the work, and bring the expense belonging to their respective jurisdictions. But these things are not to be done. All we need to do is to organize a National Board of River Regulation, in which shall be coordinated the Engineer Corps, the Reclamation Service, the Weather Bureau, the Forestry Service, and bring such board into consultation and cooperation with similar boards organized in the respective states. Then fix the date at which we shall go by determining at the outset that we will spend fifty millions annually for ten years and then instruct our engineers to plan accordingly.

Congress ought to lose no time in putting a board of Army engineers at work preparing complete plans for a comprehensive system of river improvement covering the Mississippi and its principal tributaries. Then when the Canal is finished the complete organization should be transferred to this country and given an opportunity to show its efficiency. There is scarcely an enterprise for which the nation would more willingly vote large sums, for in the long run every dollar honestly and intelligently expended would produce handsome dividends.

OPEN PARLIAMENT

OUR CITY FLOWER.

To the Editor of The Gazette:
 Our most unpopular bird does not display a yellow plumage, but our most obnoxious weed revels in a golden colored blossom, which seems to produce an effect upon the genus homo similar to the red flag upon the bull.

A great many remedies for the annihilation of the dandelion continue to burden the pages of our newspapers, but our laws each succeeding spring display more compact masses of golden color, whilst the growth and invasions of the husbandman saturates the ambient atmosphere.

For a number of years I dug dandelions with a zeal and persistence worthy of the game, with the delightful realization that for every uprooted weed a score raised their yellow crowns in floral protest. I embalmed the digger in the archives of the tool box, and brought forth the greedy lawn mower, lowered the cutting bar so as to shave the sward very close, and clipped the lawn sufficiently often to keep it free from blossoms, and this spring I have fewer dandelions than at any time within the past 10 years.

One comforting advantage the mower possesses over the uprooting implements, it does not tire your wife's back so badly to operate it.

FROM OTHER PENS

STEWART FOR GOVERNOR.

From the Pueblo Indicator:
 Philip B. Stewart, of Colorado Springs has announced his candidacy for the governorship of Colorado on a strictly progressive platform, and thereby throws down the gauntlet to the state old crowd of boss-ridden, corporation-ruled reactionaries in the Republican party of the state, as well as to the bosses and the corporations themselves that mix in politics in an unwarranted manner.

Mr. Stewart conceived to stand for the nomination after being importuned to do so by practically all the leading progressives and progressive clubs in Colorado, and now that he has decided to enter the race it means that there will be no other progressive candidate for the place, and that the progressives are ready and prepared to fight the old crowd of machine politicians to a finish.

As far as the progressives are concerned the fight for right principles in state politics has only just begun. They made a splendid showing against the money-controlled mercenaries and boss-ridden syndicates throughout the state in the late presidential primaries, and they will have easier sailing next time.

The Indicator is glad to know that Mr. Stewart is an out-and-out candidate. As secretary of the Progressive nomination for the governorship of Colorado, the Indicator is glad to know that Mr. Stewart is an out-and-out candidate. As secretary of the Progressive nomination for the governorship of Colorado, the Indicator is glad to know that Mr. Stewart is an out-and-out candidate.

No man in Colorado stands higher than he does in popular esteem, no man is better equipped by training and knowledge of state affairs to sit in the governor's chair, and the best men and women in the commonwealth will have a man as their candidate whom they can trust and who will carry out their will when elected.

From the North Park Times:

The candidacy of Philip B. Stewart for the Republican nomination for governor at the primaries this fall should make the heart of every loyal Republican in the state glad. There is not a cleaner or more able man in the state and, being a man of means, he will be able to see all the people of the state and let them hear him. Standpatists will begin to look for a seat in the Stewart bandwagon, not for the principle of it but for the fact that they are out after office. Phil Stewart will be nominated and elected.

From the Hotchkiss Herald:

Phil Stewart of Colorado Springs has come out as a candidate for the governorship of Colorado. He is a clean man and one who has not been tied up with the machine politicians and is the man that all Republicans can vote for, regardless of what faction they belong to.

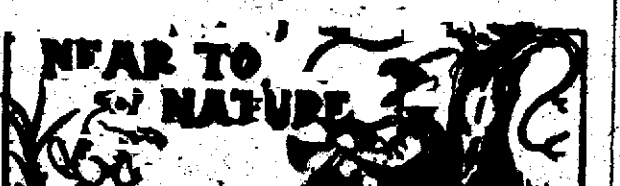

From the Ouray Herald:

Taking advantage of the new primary law, the progressive Republicans of Colorado will strike the first blow that will precede the overthrow of corporate rule and place once more the control of the state in the hands of the people, by nominating Philip B. Stewart of Colorado Springs for the office of governor. Mr. Stewart stands for progressive principles and with the common people. When Buchtel was elected governor, it was after Mr. Stewart had defeated the nomination because of corporate control of the party as represented by Gugenheim, Gabbert and Evans and he thereby won the respect of the entire state.

The announcement at this time by Mr. Stewart of his candidacy, is only after the strongest, most persistent pressure from progressive Republicans throughout Colorado, urging that the time had come to strike the shackles of corporate control from the Republican party. The progressives realize that no greater man lives in Colorado to lead their fight for the people; they know that he has always stood for progressive principles; they know that while he makes a great sacrifice in entering the political arena, that he sees with them the beacon light of victory, pointing the way to a glorious vindication of progressive principles in state and nation in November.

The editor of the Herald is one of those progressives who has urged Mr. Stewart to announce his candidacy, certain of his high character as a man with complete conviction that he will, with all his might and power strive to purge Colorado of the brazen disgrace of its grafting standard political machine. The Republican party in Colorado is in the hands of the great interests. There is no hope for earliest, unflinching champion of the common people in Colorado, as his friend, Theodore Roosevelt, is in the nation, be elected governor.

A FOOTBALL IN THE INFINITE.

From the Richmond, Va., Clarion.
 The story of the football game which was played at the head of the Clarion as a champion of the right and a denouncer of the wrong. As he stepped out upon the payment all nature seemed still, no sound of ball or great demonstration was heard or seen. All that was heard was his football on the pavement, faint and more distant it grew. Yet with that going went the hearts of many friends. We are glad to know that the town is better for his work. The good he has done shall not pass; it will be with us always. Long will he be remembered as the one who placed the Clarion on higher ground, who gave it an impetus and force which will be felt for years to come. And now as we hear the last faint echo of that football we offer this tribute to his memory.—Editor.

In Wonderland

By WALT MASON.

"Come hither, son," the father said, "and on your way don't tarry; your conduct bows my old gray head, adds to the griefs I carry. My cup of sorrow is today quite full and overbrimming; this morn you heard me plainly say that you should go a-swimming. Then I begin my daily task supposing you would mind me and in the river duly back—your wayward actions grind me! You spent the morning pulling weeds and hoeing in the garden; for such disgraceful, less deeds you cannot hope a pardon! You're growing worse, year after year; your course you can't defend it; last summer when the snow was here I said you must attend it. But did you seek the circus tents to hear the clowns a-joshing? You stayed at home to paint the fence and help your mother wash! You pay no heed to what I say; you care not what I'm wishing; I ordered you but yesterday to spend the whole day fishing; again my wishes you withstood, my admonitions spurning; you saved a pile of kindling wood and did the weekly churning! How sharper than a serpent's tooth is wayward son or daughter! So I must chasten you, rash youth, with this old wet elm swatter!"

Center shots

By ED HOWE.

Many people will submit to a nuisance for years without doing anything, except to whine to those who are not to blame.

Most of us associate with people we "talk about."

When a school teacher goes out of the room for a few minutes, she puts a big girl in charge to "tell on" the children who misbehave.

Those who are actually in society are not as ridiculous as those people trying to get in.

The women believe it is a sin for a man to be idle.

It is so easy for society to shock people who are not in it.

You will blush to have it thrown up to you, but all of you have kin you do not like.

A woman has a superior way of saying: "I never gossip with my servants."

When a man begins by saying: "Of course, it is none of my business, but—" it is a sign he is going to make it his business, and become impudent.

About the only excitement on a farm is to say at the breakfast table: "The dog barked last night as though some one was prowling around the house."

Bringing Up Children By The Pendulum

By RUTH CAMERON.

A father who was undoubtedly spoiling his children by the lavishness with which he anticipated their every desire, was warned by a friend that he was being unkind in his effort to be very kind.

"Well, you see," he answered, "when I was a boy my father was very close with me, and I was always being left out of things because I didn't have the money, although he had plenty. I made up my mind that if I ever had any children, they should have everything that money could buy if I could possibly get it for them."

With an air of evident pride, and all obvious belief that he was making a wise plan, he said to his wife: "I have made this foolish explanation. And yet, as a business man, he has a great reputation for keenness and far-sightedness."

Without doubt there are more children spoiled by the pendulum method than any other way.

What do I mean by the pendulum method? Why, just what this man was doing, swinging from one extreme to another. "I am the product of my grandmother's belief in training girls to be good housewives, whether they liked it or not," says a woman who is singularly helpless in regard to the simplest housework. "She was so strict and severe with my mother that mother said she should never be forced to do anything about the house. And behold me! I can tell you, my daughter is going to be a good housewife if she doesn't learn her A. B. C's."

You see, even while she fluninated against the pendulum method, this woman pledged herself to carry it on.

Another woman, whose brain has been developed at the expense of her body, declares that she is determined to have her children make the best of their bodies and let their brains take care of themselves.

A man, whose mother enforced strict church attendance upon him all through his minority, says that he will never ask his boys to go inside a church.

And so it goes. Because we have suffered from one extreme we must make our children suffer from the other.

FIRST AID TO INJURED HEARTS

By Laura Jean Libbey

SOME TIME WE'LL UNDERSTAND

(Copyright, 1912, by Laura Jean Libbey)

Was there ever a person who did not at some time wall against fate for denying him that which his heart craved most, the love of one held dear? Fate drifts them apart. The idol weds another. For a time the heart is sore and sad with its undimmed longings. The thought comes that life will never be the same. The burden of existence is taken up with a sigh.

As time rolls on it seems almost incredible to realize that the sharpness of the sting is slowly but surely passing. The truth dawns upon us that the hour has come when we understand. There is a guiding power, stronger and wiser than we, who has fairly to be to be about, about, that which is best for us. There are so few people who are willing to believe that whatever is, is best.

The dazzling creature, all fluff and curls, whom we adore at 20, one would find it hard to have patience with at 30. The man who seems a girl's ideal when she is 16 finds his wide of the mark when she is 25. She laughs immoderately when her parents talk about the times when she used to cry herself to sleep because he failed to put in an appearance on some evening that he was expected to call. Her grief knew no bounds when she saw him out walking with another girl. And they thought her heart would burst with grief when they read of his marriage.

Old Father Time has great sympathy with those who fail to understand that all things happen for the best, and often deals his kindness with them. Cupid is his right-hand little man. They get their heads together, as it were, to devise a new happiness that shall be sweeter by far than that which is gone before. The orchid-creeper for the bright two-edged sword, which flashes in the sunlight as it hangs on the wall. He grieves mightily because it is out of reach. In the after years he understands why it is denied him. A young man receives a letter; he reads its meaning entirely different from what the young girl who wrote it intended to convey. In an idle moment, long afterward, he picks up an old yellow letter, runs his eye over it, and an entirely different meaning comes to him. He understands. A never love has come into his life which is dearer by far than the first. All things happen for the best, if we could only look at it in that way. It is foolish to make the heart feel badly over what cannot be helped, and which we would not help if we could in the after years if we had our way about it.

Isolation is never good for the heart that has known disappointment. It is wisest and best to go among those who know nothing of your past misfortune, and then there will be no one to harp upon them, to determine that you shall not forget.

ANSWERS

SHE'S GOING TO CALL ON HIM!

"Dear Miss Libbey: A girl friend of mine would like to keep my company. She intends to call at my home soon. I do not care for her, and am too bashful to tell her I do not love her. Please give me your advice regarding the matter."—GEORGE.

My advice to you would be to take to your heels and run quickly and quietly away from the ardent young lady. I think she is only having some fun at your expense, George. If you are dreadfully bashful, it might be a good thing to try and overcome it. Don't waste time with the girl. She is not of the right sort.

SHE'S A MUSICIAN

"Dear Miss Libbey: I am a musician, having studied in various colleges for the last eight years. Now, I feel it time to have a home of my own, and I do want your help in solving this problem. I have two lovers, one a business man, the other a college professor. Now, I enjoy the society of the professor best when we are together, and we seem much more congenial, although I can't endure his mother; and by the way, he is devoted to her. But when the professor returns to his work I do not miss him so terribly.

"On the other hand, I do not particularly enjoy the company of the business man, but when separated for a short time I am miserable. Now, what seems strange, when my professor comes on his vacations, I do not mind having him see me in my dressing gown or even my hair braided down my back, while I could not think of allowing the business man to see me in this attire. Both men have good habits, and I am sure one of them is to be my helpmate through life, but the question you must help me to decide is which. Eagerly awaiting your reply."

HELEN DE.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to which one you should marry, it is evident that you are not deeply in love with either one of them. I would advise you to postpone matrimony for a time. You will know intuitively when the right one comes.

THE HASKIN LETTER

CARRIBAN POLITICS
 XXVIII COLOMBIA AND ITS CONTROVERSY.

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

CARTAGENA, Colombia, May 12.—The people of Colombia are far from satisfied with the way they were treated by the United States in the matter of the secession of Panama, and the action of a Colombian minister to Washington, in suggesting that it might not be opportune for Secretary Knox to visit Colombia on his recent trip to the Caribbean was fairly representative of the attitude of the people of this country, although it was repudiated by the Bogota government. The feeling here is that the United States instigated the secession and then refused to permit the Colombian government to put it down. The government repeatedly has asked the United States to arbitrate the controversy, and the United States has just as often refused, asserting that the matter at issue is political and not legal, and that no government is willing to submit a political question to arbitration.

Meanwhile, the Colombian government protests that it was deliberately despoiled of its territory in violation of the well-recognized principles of international law. It asserts that the United States negotiated a treaty with Colombia for the acquisition of the rights necessary to the building of the Panama canal and its operation after completion, agreeing that the treaty should not become effective until after ratification by the two governments. It further asserts that when the Colombian government failed to ratify the treaty, pressure from Washington, to force its ratification, was applied, and that when this failed, the revolution in Panama followed.

Wants Question Arbitrated.

The Bogota government has proposed that the whole question be submitted to a board of arbitration to consist of three men, one chosen by each government, and the third by these two. But the United States insists that no arbitrable question is involved, and that the incident is closed. Meanwhile, the Colombian government asserts, and says it will ever assert, that the canal zone belongs to it, and that it will continue to make this claim as long as the question is not settled by disinterested authorities. It asserts that it does not desire to take the case out from the United States, nor to disturb its construction or operation, but that it does want an adjudication of the case and the payment of such damages by the United States as its course has inflicted on Colombia.

Secretary Hay always firmly denied that the United States had had anything to do with the Panama revolution. He asserted that Uncle Sam simply found a situation that threatened the closing of the isthmian trade, that he exercised his treaty right to keep it open. Colombia had simply been in the unfortunate role of an innocent bystander. The claim was made that if Colombia could not put down the rebellion without interference, it would be a misfortune and not the concern of the United States.

Said Panama Was Justified.

But when Elihu Root became secretary of state, and Colombia sued for a reopening of the question, he did not quite take that ground. His attitude was that, even if the United States did espouse the cause of Panama, that it was not to be arbitrated. Declaring that no arbitration could pass upon the rights and wrongs of the matter without the cause thus espoused was just, he asserted that Panama was justified in its revolution. He contended that Panama was a sovereign state, which was, during its pleasure, a part of the Colombian federation, a federation from which it had the right to withdraw. He further contended that when it was subjugated by force in 1885, the compact that bound it to Colombia was broken; that it was held under a foreign domination to which it had never consented; and that it was justly entitled to demand its independence from a rule which was unlawful, oppressive, and tyrannical. He definitely announced that the United States was not willing to permit an arbitrator to determine the political policy of the United States in following its sense of right and justice in espousing Panama's cause.

Treaty Was Defeated.

The view taken by President Roosevelt at the time was that Colombia was trying to hold up the United States.

"The recent floods demonstrate the importance of dealing with our waterways under big and comprehensive plans, like we did with the Panama and irrigation questions. The apathy toward the river problem is demoralizing and unbusinesslike. The old 'pot hole' system of appropriations for rivers has been greatly improved, but we have never yet permitted our Army engineers to present to us a big plan for a system of related waterways, with terminals and transfer facilities, including cooperative instrumentalities with the railroads. Our waterways have been as inefficient as a railroad would be without terminals, stations, side tracks and with a gap in the track every few hundred miles and without bridges over streams."

The Mississippi river problem is one simply of "run-off," the rains falling from the heavens and if distributed fairly over the year would result in a standard flow of the river and its tributaries which would be safe for navigation and attended with no destructive results. But the melting of snow in the Rocky, Allegheny and Appalachian mountain systems, together with spring rains, all coming about the same time, create an enormous "run-off" from an area comprising nearly two-thirds of the United States, and this "run-off" is emptied into the Gulf through a very narrow space.

We must not only increase our appropriations for bank reclamation and levee protection below, but we must arrest the run-off by storage for irrigation and water power. And we must do this in cooperation with the states and communities affected, under common plans, so that all the sovereignties interested can do the work and bear the expense belonging to their respective jurisdictions. But these plans must dovetail into each other to create a national problem is a simple one. All we need to do is to organize a National Board of River Regulation, in which shall be coordinated the Engineer Corps, the Reclamation Service, the Weather Bureau, the Forestry Service, and bring such board into consultation and cooperation with similar boards organized in the respective states. Then fix the gait at which we shall go by determining at the outset that we will spend fifty millions annually for ten years and then instruct our engineers to plan accordingly.

Congress ought to lose no time in putting a board of Army engineers at work preparing complete plans for a comprehensive system of river improvement covering the Mississippi and its principal tributaries. Then when the Canal is finished the complete organization should be transferred to this country and given an opportunity to duplicate its wonderful feat at Panama. There is scarcely an enterprise for which the nation would more willingly vote large sums, for in the long run every dollar honestly and intelligently expended would produce handsome dividends.

OUR CITY FLOWER.

To the Editor of The Gazette:
 Our most unpopular bird does not display a yellow plumage, nor our most obnoxious weed reveals in a golden colored blossom, which seems to produce an effect upon the genus homo similar to the red flag upon the bull.

A great many remedies for the annihilation of the dandelion continue to burden the pages of our newspapers, but our laws each succeeding spring display more compact masses of golden color, whilst the groans and lamentations of the husbandman saturates the ambient atmosphere.

For a number of years I dug dandelions with a zeal and perseverance worthy of the game, with the delightful realization that for every uprooted weed a score rushed their yellow crowns in floral protest. I embalm the digger in the archives of the tool box, and brought forth the greedy lawn mower, lowered the cutting bar so as to shave the sward very close, and clipped the lawn sufficiently often to keep it free from blossoms, and this spring I have fewer dandelions than at any time within the past 10 years.

One comforting advantage the mower possesses over the uprooting implements is, it does not tire your wife's back so badly to operate it.

STEWART FOR GOVERNOR.

From the Pueblo Indicator.
 Philip B. Stewart of Colorado Springs has announced his candidacy for the governorship of Colorado on a strictly progressive platform, and thereby throws down the gauntlet to the state old crowd of boss-ridden, corporation-ruled reactionaries in the Republican party of the state, as well as to the bosses and the corporations themselves that mix in politics in an unwarranted manner.

"Mr. Stewart consented to stand for the nomination after being importuned to do so by practically all the leading progressive and progressive clubs in Colorado, and now that he has decided to enter the race it means that there will be no other progressive candidate for the place, and that the progressives are ready and prepared to fight the old crowd of machine politicians to a finish."

As far as the progressives are concerned the fight for right principles in state politics has only just begun. They made a splendid showing against the money-controlled mercenary and boss-ruled cynics throughout the state in the late presidential primaries, and they will have easier sailing next time.

The Indicator is glad to know that Mr. Stewart is an out-and-out candidate. As secretary of the Pueblo Roosevelt Republican club the editor of the paper joined with others in urging Stewart to become a candidate on an uncompromising progressive platform, and now that he has consented the Indicator will do all it can to help bring out his nomination and election.

No man in Colorado stands higher than he does in popular esteem, no man is better equipped by training and knowledge of state affairs to sit in the governor's chair, and the best men and women in the commonwealth will have a man as their candidate whom they can trust and who will carry out their will when elected.

From the North-South Times.
 The candidacy of Philip B. Stewart for the Republican nomination for Governor at the primaries this fall would make the heart of every loyal Republican in the state glad. There is no cleaner or more able man in the state, and being a man of means, he will be able to see all the people of the state and let them hear him. Standpatists will begin to look for a seat in the Stewart bandwagon, not for the principle of it but for the fact that they are out after office. Phil Stewart will be nominated and elected.

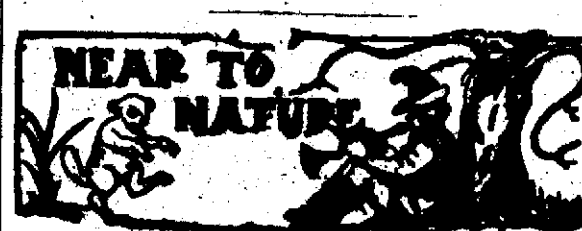

From the Hotchkiss Herald.
 Phil Stewart of Colorado Springs has come out as a candidate for governor on the Republican ticket. Mr. Stewart is a clean man and one who has not been tied up with the machine politicians and is the man that all Republicans can vote for regardless of what faction they belong to.

From the Ouray Herald.
 Taking advantage of the new primary law, the progressive Republicans of Colorado will strike the first blow that will precede the overthrow of corporate rule and place once more the control of the state in the hands of the people, by nominating Philip B. Stewart of Colorado Springs for the office of governor. Mr. Stewart stands for progressive principles and with the common people. When Buchtel was elected governor, it was after Mr. Stewart refused the nomination because of corporate control of the party as represented by Guggenheim, Gabbard and Evans and he thereby won the respect of the entire state.

The announcement at this time by Mr. Stewart of his candidacy, is only after the strongest, most persistent pressure from progressive Republicans throughout Colorado, urging that the time had come to strike the shackles of corporate control from the Republican party. The progressives realize that no greater man lives in Colorado to lead their fight for the people; they know that he has always stood for progressive principles; they know that while he makes a great sacrifice in entering the political arena, that he sees with them the beacon light of victory, pointing the way to a glorious vindication of progressive principles in state and nation in November.

The editor of the Herald is one of those progressive allies who has urged Mr. Stewart to announce his candidacy, certain of his high character as a man with complete convictions that he will, with all his might and power strike to purge Colorado of the brazen disgrace of its grafting standard political machine. The Republican party in Colorado is in the hands of the great interests. There is no hope for serious, unflinching champion of the common people in Colorado, as his friend, Theodore Roosevelt, is in the nation—be elected governor.

THE EDUCATION OF HUGH.

 Hugh Miller was home last week visiting with his mother and sister. Hugh has a position in a Chicago paper and like all the boys who have went out of this office is making good.

A FOOTFALL IN THE INFINITE.

From the Richmond Clarion.
 The door of the Clarion office has opened to allow the passing of the man who for nearly five years has faithfully stood at the head of the Clarion as a champion of the right and a denouncer of the wrong. As he stepped out upon the pavement all nature seemed still, no sound of bell or great demonstration was heard or seen. All that was heard was his footfall on the pavement, faint and more distant it grew. Yet with that going went the hearts of many friends. We are glad to know that the town is better for his work. The good he has done shall not pass; it will be with us always. Long will he be remembered as the one who placed the Clarion on higher ground, who gave it an impetus and force which will be felt for years to come. And now as we hear the last faint echo of that footfall we offer this tribute to his memory.—Editor.

By WALT MASON.

"Come hither, son," the father said, "and on your way don't tarry; your conduct bows my old gray head, adds to the griefs I carry. My cup of sorrow is today quite full and overbrimming; this morn you heard me plainly say that you should go a-swimming. Then I begin my daily task, supposing you would mind me and in the river dilly-dallying you would actions grind me! You spent the morning putting weeds and hoel in the garden; for such disgraceful, lawless deeds you cannot hope a pardon! You're growing worse, year after year; your course—you can't defend it; last summer when the show was here I said you must attend it. But did you seek the circus tents to hear the clowns a-joshing? You stayed at home to paint the fence and help your mother washing! You pay no heed to what I say; you care not what I'm wishing; I ordered you but yesterday to spend the whole day fishing; again my wishes you withstood, my admonitions spurning; you sawed a pile of kindling wood and did the weekly churning! How sharper than a serpent's tooth is wayward son or daughter! I must chasten you, rash youth, with this old wet elm swatter!"

By ED HOWE.

Many people will submit to a nuisance for years without doing anything, except to whine to those who are not to blame.

Most of us associate with people we "talk about."

When a school teacher goes out of the room for a few minutes, she puts a big girl in charge to "tell off" the children who misbehave.

These who are actually in society are not as ridiculous as those people trying to get in.

The women believe it is a sin for a man to be idle.

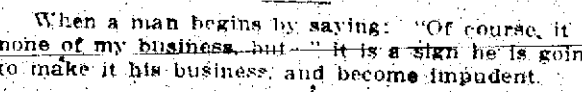

It is so easy for society to shock people who are not in it.

You will blush to have it thrown up to you, but all of you have kin you do not like.

A woman has a superior way of saying: "I never gossip with my servants."

When a man begins by saying: "Of course, it is none of my business, but—it is a sign he is going to make it his business, and become impudent."

About the only excitement on a farm is to say at the breakfast table: "The dog barked last night as though some one was prowling around the house."

By RUTH CAMERON.

"A father who was undoubtedly spoiling his children by the lavishness with which he anticipated their every desire, was warned by a friend that he was being unkind in his effort to be very kind."

"Well, you see," he answered, "when I was a boy my father was very close with me, and I was always being left out of things because I didn't have the money, although he had plenty. I made up my mind that if I ever had any children, they should have everything that money could buy if I could possibly get it for them."

"With an air of evident pride, and an obvious belief that he had justified himself, this foolish man made this foolish explanation. And yet, as a business man, he had a great reputation for keenness and far-sightedness."

Without doubt there are more children spoiled by the pendulum method than any other way.

What do I mean by the pendulum method? Why, just what this man was doing, feeling from one extreme to another.

"I am the product of my grandmother's belief in training girls to be good housewives, whether they liked it or not," says a woman who is singularly helpless in regard to the simplest housework. "She was so strict and severe with my mother that mother said I should never be forced to do anything about the house. And behold me! I can tell you, my daughter is going to be a good housewife if she doesn't learn her A, B, C."

You see, even while she fulminated against the pendulum method, this woman pledged herself to carry it on.

Another woman, whose brain has been developed at the expense of her body, declares that she is determined to have her children make the best of their bodies and let their brains take care of themselves.

A man, whose mother enforced strict church attendance upon him all through his minority, says that he will never ask his boys to go inside a church.

And so it goes. Because we have suffered from one extreme we must make our children suffer from the other.

Take it home. You mean to be the best father that ever lived, but your zeal eating up your discretion? Are you bringing your children up by the pendulum method?

SOME TIME WE'LL UNDERSTAND

(Copyright, 1912, by Laura Jean Libbey)
 Was there ever a person who did not at some time wall against fate for denying him that which his heart craved most, the love of one held dear? Fate drifts them apart. The idol weds another. For a time the heart is sore and sad with its undimmed longings. The thought comes that life will never be the same. The burden of existence is taken up with a sigh.

Time rolls on it seems almost incredible to realize that the sharpness of the sting is slowly but surely passing. The truth dawns upon us that the hour has come when we understand. There is a guiding power, stronger and wiser than we, who has fairly to battle to bring about that which is best for us. There are so few people who are willing to believe that whatever is, is best.

The dazzling creature, all fluff and curls, whom we adore at 20, one would find it hard to have patience with at 30. The man who seems a girl's ideal when she is 16 she finds is wide of the mark when she is 20. She laughs immoderately when her parents talk about the times when she used to cry herself to sleep because he failed to put in an appearance on some evening that he was expected to call. Her grief knew no bounds when she saw him out walking with another girl. And they thought her heart would burst with grief when they read of his marriage.

Old Father Time has great sympathy with those who fail to understand that all things happen for the best, and often deals his kindest with them. Cupid is his right-hand little man. They get their heads together, as it were, to devise a new happiness that shall be sweeter by far than that which is gone before. The union cries for the bright, two-edged sword which flashes in the sunlight as it hangs on the wall. He grieves mightily because it is out of reach. In the after years he understands why it is denied him.

A young man receives a letter; he reads its meaning, entirely different from what the young girl who wrote it intended to convey. In an idle moment, long afterward, he picks up an old yellow letter, runs his eye over it, and an entirely different meaning comes to him. He understands that never love has come into his life which is deeper by far than the first. All things happen for the best, if we could only look at it in that way. It is foolish to make the heart feel badly over what cannot be helped, and which we would not help if we could in the after years if we had our way about it.

Isolation is never good for the heart. Long known disappointment. It is wise and best to go among those who know nothing of your past misfortunes. Then there will be no one to harp upon them to determine that you shall not forget.

ANSWERS

SHE'S GOING TO CALL ON HIM!

"Dear Miss Libbey: A girl friend of mine would like to keep my company. She intends to call at my home soon. I do not care for her, and am too bashful to tell her I do not love her. Please give me your advice regarding the matter." GEORGE.
 My advice to you would be to take to your heels and run quickly and quietly away from the ardent young fellow. I think she is only having some fun at your expense, George. If you are dreadfully bashful, it might be a good thing to try and overcome it. Don't waste time with the girl. She is not of the right sort.

SHE'S A MUSICIAN

"Dear Miss Libbey: I am 27, a musician, having studied in various colleges for the last eight years. Now I feel it time to have a home of my own, and I do want your help in solving this question. I have two lovers, one a business man, the other a college professor. Now I enjoy the society of the professor best when we are together, and we seem much more congenial, although I can't endure his mother; and, by the way, he is devoted to her. But when the professor returns to his work I do not miss him so terribly.
 "On the other hand, I do not particularly enjoy the company of the business man, but when separated for a short time I am miserable. Now, what seems strange, when my professor comes on his vacations I do not mind having him see me, in my morning dresses or even my hair braided down my back, while I could not think of allowing the business man to see me in this attire. Both men have good habits, and I am sure one of them is to be my helpmate through life, but the question you must help me to decide is which. Eagerly awaiting your reply."

HELEN DEB.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to which one you should marry, it is evident that you are not deeply in love with either one of them. I would advise you to postpone matrimony for a time. You will know intuitively when the right one comes.

THE HASKIN LETTER

CARIBBEAN POLITICS
 XXVIII—COLOMBIA AND ITS CONTROVERSY.
 By FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

CARTAGENA, Colombia, May 12.—The people of Colombia are far from satisfied with the way they were treated by the United States in the matter of the secession of Panama, and the action of the Colombian minister to Washington, in suggesting that it might not be opportune for Secretary Knox to visit Colombia on his recent trip to the Caribbean was fairly representative of the attitude of the people of this country, although it was repudiated by the Bogota government. The feeling here is that the United States indicated the secession and then refused to permit the Colombian government to put it down. The government repeatedly has asked the United States to arbitrate the controversy, and the United States has just as often refused, asserting that the matter at issue is political and not legal, and that no government is willing to submit a political question to arbitration.

Meanwhile, the Colombian government protests that it was deliberately spolied of its territory in violation of the well-recognized principles of international law. It asserts that the United States negotiated a treaty with Colombia for the acquisition of the rights necessary to the building of the Panama canal and its operation after completion, agreeing that the treaty should not become effective until after ratification by the two governments. It further asserts that when the Colombian government failed to ratify the treaty, pressure from Washington to force its ratification, was applied, and that when this failed, the revolution in Panama followed.

Wants Question Arbitrated.
 The Bogota government has proposed that the whole question be submitted to a board of arbitration to consist of three men, one chosen by each government, and the third by these two. But the United States insists that no arbitrable question is involved, and that the incident is closed. Meanwhile, the Colombian government asserts, and says it will ever assert, that Panama belongs to Colombia, and that the canal belongs to it, and that it will continue to make this claim as long as the question is not settled by disinterested authorities. It asserts that it does not desire to take the canal away from the United States, nor to disturb its construction or operation, but that it does want an adjudication of the case and the payment of such damages by the United States as its course has inflicted on Colombia.

Secretary Hay always firmly denied that the United States had anything to do with the Panama revolution. He asserted that Uncle Sam simply found a situation that threatened the closing of the Isthmian transit, and that he exercised his treaty right to keep it open. Colombia had simply been in the unfortunate role of an innocent bystander. The claim was made that if Colombia could not put down the rebellion without interfering with the transit, that was its misfortune and not the concern of the United States.

Said Panama Was Justified.
 But when Elihu Root became secretary of state, and Colombia sued for a reopening of the question, he did not quite take that ground. His attitude was that, even if the United States did espouse the cause of Panama, that left nothing to be arbitrated. Declaring that no arbitration could pass upon the rights and wrongs of the matter without passing upon the question whether the case was deserved.

Just he asserted that Panama was justified in its revolution. He contended that Panama was a sovereign state, which, was, during its secession, a part of the Colombian federation, a federation from which it had the right to withdraw. He further contended that when it was subjugated by force in 1885, the compact that bound it to Colombia was broken; that it was held under a foreign domination to which it had never consented; and that it was justly entitled to demand its independence from a rule which was unlawful, oppressive, and tyrannical. He definitely announced that the United States was not willing to permit an arbitrator to determine the political policy of the United States in following its sense of right and justice in espousing Panama's cause.

Treaty Was Defeated.

The view taken by President Roosevelt at the time was that Colombia was trying to hold up the United States and force the payment of exorbitant sums for the privilege of building the canal. The treaty as it was then pending provided that the Colombian government should permit the New Panama Canal company to sell all its rights, privileges, and concessions to the United States. Later it sought to force the canal company to cancel all its obligations so that Colombia itself could sell the whole thing to Uncle Sam. This was followed by a campaign against the treaty on the grounds that it violated the constitution—perhaps the first time in a score of years that Colombia ever acted as if it realized it had a constitution. The result was the defeat of the treaty.

An effort was made to have negotiations reopened, but it failed. It is asserted that the reason why they were not reopened was that the concession of the New Panama Canal company would expire in 1904, and that this would give the Colombian government the property and rights which the New Panama Canal company was about to sell to the United States. It is true that legislation was enacted in 1900 extending the concession to 1910, but it was held that this extension was illegal. Therefore, reasoned the Colombians, if we can let this thing go over until the last of January, 1905, the republic would become the possessor and owner, without any need of a previous judicial decision, and without any indemnity, of the canal itself and of the adjuncts that belong to it. These were the words of the Panama canal committee of the Colombian congress, and it is asserted that they revealed a purpose not to negotiate a treaty until that time should be reached.

Company Wanted Revolution.
 It is not natural that the New Panama Canal company, discovering through this an attempt to enure it out of its assets—assets which it was then estimating at $160,000,000, but for which it afterward took $40,000,000—should be only too willing to take advantage of the dissatisfaction in Panama, and to finance the revolution whose end it thought would be to save the assets of which it believed Colombia was attempting to deprive it. It was this that led to the financing of the dissatisfaction of the Panamanians and the loss of the province of Panama to Colombia.

President Roosevelt took the ground that Colombia had entered into a treaty to permit the United States to construct the canal, and that its refusal to ratify that canal treaty or to reopen negotiations after its defeat, was tantamount to a violation of the treaty of 1846. He felt that the United States was about to be made a victim of a double-acting holdup game; that Colombia was not only maneuvering to force Uncle Sam to pay an extortionate price for the canal rights, but also deliberately to deny the New first new wheat of 1912 had been harvested today in Texas wiped out nearly all of an advance due to fear of damage in Oklahoma, Kansas and Nebraska. The close of the market here was steady and varied from the same as Saturday night to gain. Corn finished 1/4 to 1/8c down, oats ranging from 1/4c off to a rise of 1/8c, and provisions unchanged to 2 1/2c up.

NEW YORK, May 27.—For the greater

Previous to the collapse wheat prices had been on a steady climb, mainly on account of statements from experts that Kansas fields were either at a standstill or going back. It seems evident, however, that the buying on this kind of news was overdone. During the session July fluctuated between $1.00 and $1.12, with last sales $1.07 1/2, but 1/2c up Saturday night.

Commodity houses sold corn heavily throughout the day, July swinging between 75 1/2c, closing week 74c not lower; at 75c. Cash grades were easy. No. 2 yellow was quoted at 82 1/2c.

Although crop complaints were received from Ohio and Kansas, the market, after a good advance, reacted, July ranged down from 50 1/2c to 51 1/2c, and in the end was 1/4c off, at 50 1/2c.

At the close the provision market stood almost precisely the same as 24 hours before.

FLIES

The house-fly stands at the bar of modern science under indictment as the filthiest and most dangerous of all household pests. Practically all flies found in the house have been born in manure piles, garbage cans or some other equally obnoxious filth. They carry this filth on their feet and deposit it on your food.

WYOMING CATTLEMEN SHOW BRAVE SPIRIT

CHEYENNE, Wyo., May 27.—While the past winter has been the most severe in the history of the cattle business in Wyoming, reports to the state veterinarian's office show that cattlemen are talking bold of the situation in a way that spells greater success in the future. During the past three weeks there have been shipped into Wyoming over 12,000 head of cattle, and these will be followed shortly by 2,000 more.

Most of these cattle are from Texas and Oklahoma, and with better range grass than ever before and the high price of beef, should soon encourage buyers for their herds.

The principal shipments received this month are: Reader & Kelly, Wamsutter, 500 head; Park Ranch and Livestock company, 1,000 head; W. W. Driscoll, Moorcroft, 1,000 head; R. F. Pfister, Orin, 500 head; J. A. Schwager, Walcott, 200 head; Hysham & Neal, Moorcroft, 750 head; V. J. Hysham, Moorcroft, 651 head; Willow Creek Land and Livestock company, Wamsutter, 1,000 head; E. C. Ayres, Wamsutter, 500 head; Brown Cattle company, Clearmont, 1,061 head; W. A. Driscoll, Moorcroft, 815 head; Keeline Bros., Gillette, 1,221 head; G. W. Ling, Orin, Cheyenne, 1,205 head; George A. Saulsbury, Wamsutter, 488 head.

Keeline Bros. started the winter with one of the largest herds in the state, and ended with practically none. Roy Montgomery of the same place lost approximately 2,000 head.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

Since Andrew Jackson's Day Every President of the United States has been selected by a national party convention. The story of the origin and rise of the convention system, the development of party organizations, and the most eventful incidents of the national conventions of the past will be told in a series of twenty daily articles by Frederic J. Haskin. These articles will not be dull essays written out of dusty books, but will revive for the reader of to-day the contemporary views and opinions of other days. Do you know what place resulted in the nomination of Lincoln for President in 1860? Do you know how Polk, the first dark horse was selected? Do you know why there is a "unit rule" and a "two-thirds rule" in Democratic conventions and not in Republican conventions? Do you know what defeated the Grant third-term movement? Do you know who made the first test convention speeches? These and hundreds of other questions like these will be most interestingly answered in this series of Haskin lectures.

BEGINNING IN THIS NEWSPAPER ON WEDNESDAY, MAY 29, 1912

GOOD REPORTS FROM THE ACACIA PROPERTY
The Acacia Gold Mining company, operating in the Cripple Creek district, with head offices in this city, reports several strikes made recently. The company has been doing much development work since the opening of the deep drainage tunnel, and which has been productive of good results. The lessees have been shipping seven cars a week, with an average value of $40 per ton. The royalties this month will amount to about $3,000. This ore is being shipped from the seventh, eighth and ninth levels.
